PROJECTS

1. Finance: It's a web application by which users can manage portfolios of stocks. This will allow users to check real stocks' actual prices, and via this app, they can buy and sell stocks. Python, CSS, and HTML were used to develop this application.
2. Sentiment Analysis: This project classifies a set of tweets into two categories: racist and non-racist. Here I implemented several feature extraction techniques and machine learning algorithms to build models. The performances of different methods were analyzed and compared. Python was used to build the project.
3. Crime Spot Mapper (Group project): It's a Google Map-based Android Application. Through this app, people can mark crime spots in a city. The nearest police stations can be found in the application. Police can detect those marked spots and take proper actions.
